

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A performance scheduler creates performance schedule of a battery based on use schedule of applications and residual charge level. A mode controller monitors and controls performance levels of a laptop
5 personal computer according to the performance schedule. Further, when a charge counter counts a number of charge cycles of the battery and estimates residual charge level, a reduction in a charging capacity is taken into consideration based on the number of the charging times.